Course Overview

The 12th HR Symposium aims to explore the intersection of performance management and productivity. Participants will gain insights into maximizing employee performance, understanding the difference between performance and productivity, and building a productive workplace culture. The symposium will cover topics such as strategic performance management systems, effective performance appraisals, and improving employee performance. It's a must-attend event for HR professionals seeking growth and knowledge in people management. In this dynamic and thought-provoking event, we delve into the heart of people management, where performance, goals, and recognition intersect. Our focus? Empowering you to lead your teams toward their highest potential. At the 12th HR Symposium, we recognize that organizations thrive when their people thrive. Whether you're an HR professional, a manager, or an aspiring leader, this symposium promises to be a transformative experience. Together, we'll explore strategies, tools, and insights to elevate employee performance, foster growth, and drive organizational success.
